

Chapter Two:

1. Whom did Mr. Lockwood see in Wuthering Heights? And what happened in his second visitation?

Lockwood pays a second visit to meet Heathcliff. This time he sees a young girl and a young man. He mistakes the young girl as Heathcliff's wife but is told by Heathcliff that she is his daughter-in-law. Lockwood also mistakes the young fellow as Heathcliff's son and the young girl's husband, but Heathcliff again corrects him and informs Lockwood that his son was dead. The young fellow intervenes and informs that his name is Hareton Earnshaw.

2. How was the social atmosphere inside the house when Lockwood stays for the tea?

Lockwood is offered tea, but there is not much of social conversation between him and the inmates of the house.

3. Why could not Lockwood leave Wuthering Heights at that night?

The weather has turned very foul and a strong wind accompanied by snow has begun to blow. Lockwood will find it very difficult to find his way back to Thrushcross Grange. He gets no help from his host and so he decides to leave on his own. As soon as he goes out, he is attacked by two dogs. Heathcliff laughs at Lockwood's plight, but Lockwood is rescued by Zillah, the housekeeper. It is impossible for Lockwood now to go back to Thrushcross Grange and he has to spend the night at Wuthering Heights.

4. Describe the two new characters introduced in this chapter.

This chapter introduces two other characters. One of them is a young woman, slender, with an excellent figure and an exquisite face. She is rude to Lockwood. She is seventeen years old. The other is a young fellow whose clothes and manner of speech are indicative of crudeness. His relationship to Heathcliff and to the young girl is not indicated at this stage.

5. What is Lockwood's impression of Heathcliff, Hareton, and Joseph?

This time Lockwood's impression is that Heathcliff has a genuinely bad nature. Hareton is described as a clown and a boor. Joseph, the servant, is as insolent as he was on the first occasion and is described as vinegar-faced.

Chapter 3:

1. Where was Lockwood supposed to sleep? What did he find there?

Zillah puts Lockwood in a room upstairs. He is to sleep in a bed which is like a closet and very close to a window. On the window-sill are a number of books on which Lockwood finds the names-Catherine Earnshaw, Catherine-Heathcliff, and Catherine-Linton (These are the names of the same woman). Lockwood also finds a diary belonging to the same woman.

2. What did Lockwood discover in the diary entries?

One entry in this diary reads that Hindley's treatment of Heathcliff was extremely objectionable, and that Catherine and Heathcliff were going to revolt against Hindley's attitude. This entry in the diary also makes a reference to a scamper which Catherine and Heathcliff had on the moors. Another entry in the diary expresses Catherine's sympathy for Heathcliff who was regarded by Hindley as vagabond.

3. What was Lockwood's first dream about?

As Lockwood goes through the pages of the diary, he falls asleep and sees a couple of dreams, which are actually nightmares. In the first dream, Lockwood finds himself in a church in the company of Joseph, listening to a sermon from a priest. Suddenly the priest points an accusing finger at Lockwood, and the members of the congregation begin to attack Lockwood from all sides. Lockwood hears the sound of the priest's loud tapping on the boards of the pulpit, but on waking up Lockwood finds the branch of a fir tree, growing close to the window, striking against the glass-panes.

4. What was Lockwood's second Dream?

In the second dream Lockwood finds his hand being held by a small, ice-cold hand of a child speaking in a most melancholy voice and asking to be allowed to come in. The child gives her name as Catherine Linton. Lockwood, instead of showing any sympathy of the child, rubs the child's hand on the broken glass-pane so that the hand begins to bleed. Lockwood wakes up from this dream, yelling with terror. Hearing his yell, Heathcliff comes into the room.

5. How does Heathcliff react on hearing the second dream?

Heathcliff feels very angry to discover that the housekeeper allowed Lockwood to occupy this particular bed in this particular room. On hearing an account of Lockwood's dreams, Heathcliff bursts into tears and looking out of the window, says "come in! come in! Cathy, do come in. Oh, my heart's darling".

6. What does Lockwood observe before leaving Wuthering Heights?

Lockwood now gets ready to leave the place and go back to Thrushcross Grange. Before leaving, he is a witness to an unpleasant scene between Heathcliff and his daughter-in-law. Heathcliff insults the girl by saying that she is living on his charity and that she does not work at all, while the girl insolently says that she will do nothing except what pleases her.
